

THIRTIETH YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 5, 1920.

NUMBER 45.

LANCASTER

MARKET

Still Strong on Good Tobacco.

Top Basket Brings $1.50 Per Pound.

While the tobacco market shows a decided falling off in prices in many markets, the prices at the Garrard Tobacco Warehouse have been unusually high during the past week and many splendid averages have been made. There seems to be no let up in the number of wagons that are still coming to this market, but the management of this splendid house is taking care of them all and everything is running like a piece of machinery. Webb Kelley and Charlie Ross had a fine crop on the market this week, the total number of pounds raised on 3 1/4 acres of land, being 6575 pounds, that sold for a general average of $77.00. Many other crops sold well as the following figures will show; several baskets reaching the dollar fifty mark. Bring your tobacco to this market and you will be pleased with the price. There were few rejections during the past week.

Read some of these averages:

Kelley and Ross sold 240 pounds at 59 cents; 295 pounds at 64 cents; 35 pounds at 68 cents; 510 pounds at 87 cents; 175 pounds at 89 cents; 295 pounds at 89 cents; 340 pounds at 90 cents; 335 pounds at 90 cents; 335 pounds at 98 cents; 240 pounds at 97 cents; 550 pounds at 88 cents; 45 pounds at $1.09; 130 pounds at 86 cents.

Palmer and Coldiron sold 225 pounds at 69 cents; 270 pounds at 76 cents; 230 pounds at 80 cents; 185 pounds at 81 cents; 150 pounds at 85 cents; 265 pounds at 73 cents; 415 pounds at 75 cents; 295 pounds at 70 cents; 55 pounds at 65 cents.

O. T. Layton sold 90 pounds at 65 cents; 120 pounds at 69 cents; 80 pounds at 84 cents; 40 pounds at 90 cents; 65 pounds at 94 cents; 60 pounds at 90 cents; 40 pounds at 95 cents; 70 pounds at 95 cents; 50 pounds at 97 cents; 80 pounds at 93 cents; 65 pounds $1.00; 100 pounds at 98 cents; 150 pounds at 98 cents; 25 pounds at 85 cents; 65 pounds at 85 cents; 80 pounds at 80 cents; 100 pounds at 59 cents; 100 pounds at 52 cents.

Here are some of the general averages:

PALMER AND COLDIRON, LANCASTER, 2240 POUNDS AVERAGE, $72.10.

J. W. PALMER, LANCASTER, 2345 POUNDS, AVERAGE, $55.30. FARRA AND CARPENTER, LANCASTER, 1340 POUNDS, AVERAGE, $71.75.

Mrs. Bourland Honored

The ladies of the Christian church gave a pleasant informal good-bye gathering to Mrs. E. B. Bourland Tuesday afternoon. She will leave in a few days for Lancaster where Rev. Bourland has accepted a call to the Christian church. Mrs. Bourland was surprised by the gift of a dainty wrist watch as a token of love and esteem from the women of the local church.—Harrodsburg Herald.

VICTOR B. STONE

Former Lancaster Boy Has Largest Bible Class In State.

The Somerset Commonwealth contains an interesting article in a recent issue concerning a former Lancaster boy, Victor Stone. A splendid likeness of the young man was run in connection with the article and will be read here by his many former friends. It says:

The Victor Stone Bible Class of the Christian Church held a social gathering in the church parlors last evening. Quite an elaborate program was arranged and refreshments were served. The committee on arrangements were Mesdames Chester Kaiser A. L. Hurke, R. M. Fesse, Flora Miller, V. B. Stone, H. Yates, George Orwin, and Miss Otis Rogers.

The attendance was large and a number of games were played and some excellent music rendered. Mr. Stone has the distinction of being the teacher for twelve years of the largest mixed Bible Class in the State. His class is being reorganized and promises to go even beyond its present good record this spring and summer. Mr. Stone is an enterprising young business man, and is an excellent and most interesting teacher. His personality before his class holds the attention of every student and he has a way of teaching the lessons that is ever pleasing to his hearers. The Victor Stone Bible Class is known throughout the country and Mr. Stone is very fortunate in being so honored.

FORMER LANCASTER BOY

Dies In Washington. Officer In Army.

The remains of Lieut. Van Hamilton Denny, were brought to Lancaster, Tuesday and interred in the local cemetery. Lieutenant Denny was a son of the late Judge George Denny and Mrs. Denny and when a young boy made his home in this city. He has many friends here who will regret to learn of his passing. He was 42 years old, and death was due to paralysis, of which he had suffered for many years. He served at Vancouver, San Francisco and in the Philippines. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Denny and two sisters, Misses Eugenia and Massey Denny, all of whom live in Lexington and for whom much sympathy is expressed in the loss of a dutiful son and devoted brother.

GARRARD CROP

Sells High on Danville Market

G. B. ROBINSON GETS AVERAGE OF $91.78.

One of the good averages made on the breaks of The Peoples Tobacco Warehouse at Danville, was a crop raised by Mr. George B. Robinson, on his farm near Marcellus and which sold at this house yesterday. The "farmers slip" which Mr. Robinson brought to this office, tells the tale and cannot be disputed or doubted.

The crop was sold under the name of Robinson and Prather and totaled 3820 pounds and brought in dollars and cents, a total of $3,529.20, or a total average for the crop of $91.78. One of the remarkable things about this sale was that not a single basket sold less than 79.00 a hundred.

Here is the sale by baskets:

280 pounds at 87 cents	...$243.60
375 pounds at 89 cents	...$328.15
240 pounds at 95 cents	...$228.00
325 pounds at 97 cents	...$315.25
410 pounds at 95 cents	...$389.50
130 pounds at 89 cents	...$115.70
280 pounds at 97 cents	...$271.60
50 pounds at 91 cents	...$45.50
30 pounds at 93 cents	...$27.70
175 pounds at 95 cents	...$166.25
440 pounds at 99 cents	...$435.60
370 pounds at 99 cents	...$366.30
115 pounds at 95 cents	...$109.25
210 pounds at 82 cents	...$172.20
400 pounds at 79 cents	...$316.00

Large Hawk Trapped.

Mr. Robert Smith, who lives out on the Poor Ridge like caught a large hawk in a snare last week, that measured forty-eight inches from tip to tip. His hawkship was not severely injured, only one toe getting in the trap, and now occupies a large stall in Mr. Smith's barn and is fed on rabbits which it devours eagerly.

MANY STUDENTS

Take Examination For Common School Diploma.

One of the largest classes ever taking the examination for the Common School Diplomas were examined last week before Miss Jennie Higgins, our county Superintendent. In all there were 37 pupils, twenty-six white and 11 colored pupils. This is the first year that Buckeye has ever furnished any pupils for this examination, that school sending eleven. They were Mary Lee Kurtz, Elmer Ray, Bernice Broadus, Lillie Kurtz, Verna Ransdal Ray, Annie May, Myrtle Davis, J. H. Ray, Roy C. Long, Jesse Ray and Roberts Fay Ray.

The following from the Paint Lick Consolidated school; Eloise Ledford, Minnie Nelson Ramsey, Burdette Ramsey, Lula Spilman, Vernell Gouch, Herbert Tudor, William Tudor, and Blanche Bowling.

Other Rural schools furnished the following: Mason H. Pollard, Arthur Rankin, William Daniels, Clarence Tribble, Anna Everee Layton, J. W. Hurton and Arnold Edwards.

CAPT. W. P. PIERCE

Formerly Of Lancaster, Dies At His Post In Washington City.

Capt. W. P. Pierce, who formerly lived in Lancaster and is well remembered by many of his older friends, died in Washington City on January 27th, last. In relating his death the Washington Star has the following:

Capt. William Pierce, a member of the 11th Kentucky Cavalry during the civil war, for many years an employee of the Post Office Department, died of pneumonia yesterday afternoon at Casualty Hospital.

Capt. Pierce was born in Lancaster Ky., and was a boyhood friend of the late Senator Bradley. Capt. Pierce's civil war services extended through three years under Gen. Rosecrans and Thomas. He was with Gen. Shackleford at the capture of Gen. Morgan, the Confederate raider.

After the civil war Capt. Pierce went to Georgia and was a candidate for Congress on the republican ticket. He was a delegate to the national republican conventions which nominated Harrison and McKinley. He was the first delegate elected to attend the national convention to announce that McKinley was his choice for the presidential nomination.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at Zurcher's undertaking chapel, under the auspices of Lincoln Post, No. 3, G. A. R. Interment will be at Arlington national cemetery.

Crab Orchard Bank Robbed.

Hold bad robbers entered the Crab Orchard bank last Friday night and succeeded in getting away with about $12,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, stamps, currency, etc. Only the vault was entered, and the little safe which contains about $12,000 in cash was not molested.

It is thought that nitroglycerine was used, as a loud report was heard during the night, but know one suspected that robbery was about to be pulled off, and so they gave it little thought.

Most of the valuable were taken from private safety deposit boxes which were handled roughly by the intruders, rendering them useless for future business.

There are no clues, but blood hounds were brought into play but lost the trail as it is supposed that an automobile was used to carry off the booty.

Popular Appointment.

That was a master stroke that the directors of the Lincoln County National Bank at Stanford made last week, when they named unanimously, Mr. J. Fleece Robinson as Cashier, to succeed Mr. W. M. Bright, deceased.

The appointment is an ideal and popular one as Mr. Robinson's business acumen along this line of work is so well known, we predict that he will well fill the shoes of his worthy predecessor. Both the bank and Mr. Robinson are to be congratulated.

OVER $2,000,000.00

Of Real Estate Sold By Swinebroad, The Real Estate Man of Lancaster, Kentucky, In 1919.

OVER 10,000 ACRES OF LAND AT AN AVERAGE PRICE OF MORE THAN $200.00 PER ACRE.

Swinebroad is now listing farms, preparing his catalogues and fixing his dates for 1920. His territory covers about fifteen counties in Central Kentucky.

If you want to buy or sell real estate now is the time to get in touch with his "Real Estate Headquarters."

Swinebroad also has offices at Danville, Ky., in charge of Mr. W. E. Moss, who has been with him over two years.

Swinebroad is one real estate man who believes in advertising, having spent over $10,000.00 in newspaper advertising last year and he is thus enabled to give service, and service is what the public is looking for.

The real estate business is a profession, and the same ethics of the profession must prevail in order to succeed as in any other profession or business, and SUCCESS is not to be measured in dollars and cents alone, but in the clientele the real estate broker holds and the reputation he makes for fair dealing and a judge of values.

Years of experience and a close study of past and current financial conditions are necessary for him to become an expert judge of present values and future probabilities.

The real estate farm broker should have an actual and practical experience in farming to be able to judge of the adaptability of certain soils to certain crops. In other words, he ought to know just what he can do with any farm before he can advise with a prospective purchaser with reference thereto. Swinebroad has this experience and will not offer for sale a farm or other property unless in his judgment the price asked will justify a purchase.

Select the man with whom you desire to transact real estate business, with the same care you select your physician, your lawyer, or your banker, whether you want to sell or want to buy. Your savings of a life time, or your future financial condition may be at stake. If you cannot trust your real estate broker don't do business with him. When you select your real estate broker list your property with him exclusively (talk this proposition over with Swinebroad) and assist him when you can. He is then justified in spending time and money in advertising and pushing the sale of your property. Remember Swinebroad "ALWAYS SELLS" so if you want to buy or want to sell real estate, give Swinebroad or Moss an opportunity to talk it over with you. Just a little talk with them may make or save you money without cost to you.

Swinebroad deals in real estate not only as a broker but as a purchaser. If you want to sell be sure to see him. If you want to buy he has farms and other real estate of his own for sale.

Big Promotion

Dr. A. M. Elder who has been selling a hog cholera remedy in this section for a number of years has been made sales manager for his company for the state of Georgia and will leave at once for Atlanta to take up his work. He has enjoyed wonderful success in this section and it can be truthfully stated, the Advocate is informed, that there is not a case of hog cholera in Boyle county. He will be succeeded here by Mr. Sam Fox who will continue to supply hog raisers with the preparation.—Danville Advocate.

Resigns

Mr. Jephtha Onstott, who has been connected with the local Internal Revenue Office, as Field Agent, for the past four or five years, has resigned his position, effective February 1st. Mr. Onstott stated to an Advocate reporter that he felt the call to return to the farm so strong that he could not further resist it and that he would go back to raising tobacco and other products this spring after taking a brief rest. His mother and brother are anxious for him to join them in the purchase of a farm either in Garrard or Boyle counties and this they will do, he said.—Danville Advocate.

ROAD MEETING

Called For Saturday Afternoon.

Every citizen and resident of Garrard county should be interested in the Federal Highway that is to come through this county and if we are to have this road, the special election which has been called for Tuesday, March 30th, should be carried in favor of the bond issue.

In order that some organization may be formed looking toward this election, we are asked to call a meeting of the citizens of the city and county, for Saturday afternoon, February 7th, at two P. M., to discuss matters of importance. The meeting will be held in the county court room. Come and bring your neighbors.

NEEDED

Bill Proposed In Congress For Relief For Newspapers.

As a means of meeting some of the great shortage in print paper, Representative Ferris, of Oklahoma, proposes in a bill introduced in congress to prohibit exportation of print for one year. Recognition of the seriousness of the situation confronting the newspapers of the country also is taken by Representative Christopherson, of South Dakota, in a bill authorizing the federal trade commission to take control of the print paper supply and allot the same to publishers.

Increasing costs of all articles that enter into the making of newspapers has compelled more than 2,000 publications to suspend in less than two years, and many others have been forced into consolidation. The country weeklies and the small city dailies are the chief victims of the scarcity of news print and higher prices of materials, and the heaviest losses is among them. The papers in the larger cities are now seriously menaced. The available supply is such that a paper famine is imminent unless drastic measures are taken. Newspapers throughout the country are forced to conserve paper, but this brings only a small measure of profit.

American Legion News.

The call meeting set for last Saturday night at the Police Court room was met with much success.

Quite a large number was on hand and a lot of business in regard to the Memorial Sunday which will be observed in Lancaster on Sunday, February 22nd, was attended to. From this date until Sunday, February 22nd will be known as an ever member canvass to get as many new Ex-Service men in this organization as possible.

Post Commander Dr. Kinnaird told of what was being planned by the Legion also how to convert your Government Insurance and many other things of importance to the Ex-service men.

Tonight, Thursday, the local post will journey to Paint Lick to hold a meeting there and to try to get as many new members as possible.

On next Saturday night there will be held at the Police Court Room in Lancaster at 7:15 P. M. another meeting and all Soldiers, Marines and Navy men are cordially asked to be present and to try to bring as many with them as possible.

Post Comdr. Kinnaird is making a trying effort to enroll all the Ex-service men in this organization and it is a privilege and honor that only ex-service men who have received an honorable discharge can belong to.

On next Thursday night week this Post will also hold a meeting in Bryansville for the same purpose as the one being held in Paint Lick tonight. With the American Legion up to full strength, that is to enroll all the men throughout the county this will be by far the strongest Organization that is in the county, and the only ones who are fighting this are people commonly known as "Reds" "Bolsheviks" and etc.

On Sunday Feb 22nd, this Post will hold Memorial Services at some Local Church or the School Auditorium and to give out to the next of kin a MEMORIAL DIPLOMA for those who gave their all while in the service.

If you were in the service try to be present at this meeting of this Post at the Police Court Room in Lancaster Feb. 7th at 7:15 P. M. Respect.

Virgil G. Kinnaird, Post Comdr.

BILL KILLED

Number of Newspaper Men Appear Before The House Committee and Get Committee to Kill a Bad Bill.

Some days ago the Senate of Kentucky passed a measure known as the Bright Bill, which made it optional with the Fiscal Court whether the Sheriff's Settlement should be published in full or as a synopsis.

The bill was opened before the committee by H. B. Cozine and M. O. Sullivan, Shelbyville; H. W. V. Richardson and J. C. Alcock, Danville; M. V. Bell, Lawrenceburg; T. W. Adams, Ashland; and D. M. Hutton, Harrodsburg, members of the Kentucky Press Association. The newspapermen said they were not actuated by a desire for the advertising, because rates have gone above the ordinary rate for such publications, but their experience has demonstrated that it is important to make public a full statement of where county revenues come from and go. They argued that a synopsis or recapitulation showing the amounts spent in various funds would be worthless for information throwing light on the management of public funds.

This matter was up before the Kentucky Court of Appeals some months ago and in handing down a decision, showing that it was the duty of the Fiscal Court to publish the report in full, Judge Sampson, of the Court said:

"This statute was passed in the interest of the public good. In such matters publicity is a safeguard, which when well employed, renders the public revenue even more secure than from bars or fire-proof safes. The fiscal affairs sometimes have fallen into such bad way that those having them in charge have carefully withheld and guarded the true condition, less the public become informed and select a new set of officers at the next ensuing election. To prevent this, and that the tax-payers and real persons in interest might know the facts, the legislature has provided for the publication of this statement. It did not leave it in the discretion of the fiscal court to publish the statement if in its judgment it should think best, but the provision is mandatory, and the publication must be made, whether it suits the convenience or the financial condition of the county or its fiscal agents or not. It has a beneficial purpose and when well employed, no body has a wholesome influence. The correct status of the financial affairs of the county is brought home to those directly affected. To give the fiscal court a discretion as to whether the statement should be published, or how it should be published, would, in cases in which it was most needed, and primarily intended to correct, defeat the whole purpose of the statute. Those counties whose financial affairs have been so conducted as to warrant the officers in voluntarily making public the receipts and disbursements, are not the ones intended to be reached by this act, but it is those counties whose affairs have been so mismanaged that the fiscal court would rather hide than exploit the real conditions. The county newspaper usually reaches a very large per cent of the population of the county and its contents are carefully read. Its influence is far reaching. If its editor be a sensible, discreet and industrious citizen the paper will accomplish great and lasting good. Such an institution should be recognized and encouraged."

Swiss Bell Ringers.

Those who haven't already purchased tickets for the Swiss Bell Ringers that will appear at the School Auditorium to-morrow afternoon and night should do so at once. This will be by far one of the best entertainments of this character that has appeared in Lancaster for many months.

The benefits derived from the entertainment will go to the Athletic Club and the School Library. It is for a good cause, a good show and well worth the price of admission. Remember the date Friday afternoon and night, February 6th.

"No Rheumatics" is a Mighty Poor Reason for Wearing a Wooden Leg

NO sting or hot burnin' is a mighty weak-kneed recommendation for tobacco. But when tobacco is mild and cool, and yet as full of "fun" as a barrel of monkeys—well, that's another story—that's Velvet.

And 'cause why?

'Cause Velvet is brought up—not jerked up by the hair. It's raised as carefully as a favorite child. It's cured in the big fresh air. And it mellows away for two years in wooden hogsheads 'til it's smooth and rich as cream. The wonder would be if Velvet wasn't a whacking good pipe smoke.

"Let Nature mellow yo' tobacco an' that tobacco will shore mellow yo' nature," says Velvet Joe. And he's pretty nearly right.

NATURE-AGEING in the wood does more to make tobacco friendly than any camouflage you can cover it with—and don't you forget it. See, taste, smell, feel the "real tobacco-ness" in Velvet. Why, you can almost hear it. Velvet's the tobacco you can judge with your eyes wide open and specs on.

There's a whole lot in Nature's way of making good tobacco better. And it's all in Velvet.

Here's to a full pipe and a friendly one.

The Outlaw

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

It was the last month of the year, the last day of the month, the last hour of the day. Despite the holiday season, for nearly a fortnight the mountain-hemmed-in Arizona town had found time to participate in the excitement of a jury trial of one of the notorious characters of the district, who with her family of outlaws had been the terror of residents and travelers for three decades.

She was old Mother Shipley, and the charge against her was killing Morton Bland, a man of little moral standing, but a citizen. Bland had been found dead with a rifle bullet in his head not far away from the isolated Shipley cabin. He had two years before induced the only Shipley girl of the family, Mollie, to elope with him, had palmed off a mock marriage on her, had basely deserted her, and she had committed suicide in a distant city. It was proven that Mrs. Shipley had often threatened to shoot Bland on sight. When she was brought to Eldon for trial her son Dave, himself many a time under the ban of the law, accompanied her. Public opinion was against the old woman, but the sublime devotion of her son, wicked as she was, influenced handsome Dacre, a young lawyer, to undertake her defense. Before that his had been the province of prosecuting the outlaws, and they owed him a debt of intense hatred and revenge.

At midnight of the old year the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty." The excited delight of the faithful son was rapturous. He fairly embraced the young attorney, who, by proving that there was no other weapon than a revolver at the cabin at the time of the killing, freed the old woman. "I've less than fifty dollars to pay you for your services," Dacre told Dave, "but within a month I'll be back here with a decent fee, for you have enabled my old mother to go back home and die in peace."

Two months went by and Dacre had well nigh forgotten Dave. The mind of the young lawyer was full of his prospective bride, who had arrived from the East, and he was preparing to go to Carson, where the wedding was to take place. The day preceding his anticipated departure there appeared Dave Shipley with a string of eight finely bred horses.

"I've come to square up with you, Mr. Dacre," he said. "Poor old mother died a week ago. I'm moving to a new location, and I'm going to put the horses in the livery here. Whatever they bring is yours."

Dacre declared that he was already sufficiently compensated, but Dave was insistent. In the conversation Dacre chanced to mention his projected trip to Carson.

"I'm bound there myself," remarked Dave, "and as the crowd I've broken away from have it in for you, my company would be a protection. Besides that, I have something I want to tell you on the journey."

That "something" Dave recited the following evening.

"Mr. Dacre," he said, "my mother never knew who shot Bland. I did. Don't shrink away from me, for you would do as I did had you been in my place. The villain knew I was on the lookout for him and made up his mind to put me out of the way. He was in cahoots with the Lucas gang, and was on his way to hire some of them to kill me, when he saw me near the house. He fired at me. I was too quick for him on the second shot. This is the true story."

"It's a good one, and it fixes you with the gang!" spoke a new voice suddenly, and a revolver in either hand, Dyke Lucas confronted Dave and Dacre. "Get up and march."

Dacre left his weapons out of reach. "All right," he spoke coolly. "I suppose you intend to try me for putting that villain Bland out of the way? All right, fair border justice, but you'll let this man with me go."

"I won't!" growled Lucas. "We've a score to settle with him, too."

"He'll go free, or it's a duel to the death," answered Dave, made a sudden spring, wrenched one of the weapons from the grasp of Lucas, dashed behind a tree, and kept the revolver pointed directly at the outlaw. "Give Mr. Dacre free passage and I'll go quietly with you. Here—take a gambler's charm. The dice—one throw. If I score the highest, he goes. If not, we both go with you."

"Done!" assented Lucas, and each put up his weapon. "Two sixes," announced Dacre, tossing the dice on the ground, and passed them to Lucas. The latter threw a two and a four.

"Get on your horse and hit the trail quick, Mr. Dacre," ordered Dave, and proceeded to pack up his belongings. As Dacre disappeared abruptly Lucas uttered a savage roar. Inspecting the dice he made a discovery.

"Loaded dice!" he uttered in a hoarse shout. "You got that Dacre out of my clutches unfairly! You flat for that, then after the lawyer!"

"Not this time!" shot out Dave firmly. "I'll stand trial, but—bang, bang! simultaneously each man fired. They were so close together that they fell almost side by side.

Lucas never moved again. Dave felt his life blood ebbing away. "I've paid my bill!" he muttered faintly. "For mother's sake!" and died, smiling.

Found It Somewhat Depressing.
I had taken little nephew with me to a funeral at the home of one of our neighbors. He was very quiet during the music and singing and subdued weeping of the mourners, but gave a slight of relief when the services were over. On our way home he looked up at me and remarked: "It wasn't a very happy party, was it, auntie?"—Chicago American.

Helpmates at Reasonable Prices.
In Mongolia there are only two modes of marriage—capture and purchase. The cost of a wife varies from five camels for a young girl to thirty or forty camels for an old widow, the latter being quoted higher than all other classes. In statements relative to price obtained in Mongolian society it was brought out that a wife may be bought for five pounds of rice in that country.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Kingsford, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Stanton, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thedford's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."
Thedford's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.
If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.
Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Thedford's the original and genuine. 15 70

OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE FAST ACCUMULATING

Husband and Wife both find relief from their Troubles through Trutona.

Owensboro, Ky. Feb. 4.—Additional proof of the unusual merit to be found in Trutona, the Perfect Tonic, comes from Mr. and Mrs. Murray Jones well known Owensboro people, who live at 811 Center Street. The story of their remarkable relief only adds to the already overwhelming evidence, fast accumulating in favor of Trutona.

"I was suffering from nervousness and severe headaches and Mr. Jones was troubled with rheumatism and constipation," Mrs. Jones said recently. "My husband suffered greatly from pains in his back. The pain in his hips was so bad at times that he could hardly sit down."

"We have been taking Trutona for several days now and we are both greatly improved. I have a much better appetite and sleep well at night, too, because my nerves are in such better condition. I'm not bothered with the headaches so much, either. Trutona has relieved Mr. Jones' rheumatism and constipation. We both think that Trutona is a wonderful medicine."

Trutona is now being introduced and explained in Lancaster at McRobert's drug store.

War Fortunes

And Taxation.

How much are you paying in taxes this year? How much greater is it than the sum you paid in 1914?

The poor man and the average citizen of modest means would not hesitate to make a frank reply to that question. He probably has a few thousands more than he had before the war, and he will be found paying his taxes accordingly.

But what of our new crop of millionaires—those mushrooms in trousers who profited in the blood of humanity—who screwed the last penny from those who were compelled to have war munitions and food or go down in defeat?

How many of these newly rich—the plutocrats of calamity—will honestly pay in proportion to their gains?

How many who have wrung millions in war gains from our own government will make a just return on their wealth?

How much of this graft will be returned to the government in the form of honest taxation?

It would be interesting to see a tabulated statement of the taxes paid for the years 1914 and 1919.

If the government should suddenly decide to make this information public the roars of protest would be more ludicrous than the king of clowns at a circus.

The comparison, we fear, would put old Annanias to shame.

CHEST CLOGGED UP WITH HEAVY COLD?

Don't give it a chance to "set in"—use Dr. King's New Discovery

THAT dangerous stage where a cold or cough or case of grippe might get the better of you may be nearer than you think. Prompt action with Dr. King's New Discovery will avert a long siege.

For fifty years it has loosened congested chests, dissipated tight-packed phlegm, broken vicious colds and coughs. Give it to the youngsters—take it yourself. There will be no disagreeable after-effects.

Bowels Become Normal

Purgatives, never pleasantly corrective, sometimes habit-forming, should not be taken to rack the system violently. Nature's way is the way of Dr. King's New Life Pills—gently but firmly functioning the bowels, eliminating the intestine-clogging waste, and promoting the most gratifying results. Cleanse the system with them and know the boon of regular bowels. 25c. at all druggists.

When Work Kills.

Many people will tell you that work never kills any one. But it does.

There is a certain pace that men travel that requires work—work of a peculiar kind—work that leads inevitably to disaster.

That is the work that has disipation as its goal.

The young man who spends hours chasing the wild orgies of the bright lights is a worker. He toils diligently in his search for new thrills, for the sordid and seamy side of life, for the "skirt" that smiles when he nods his head.

His brain is ever on the alert—seeking, seeking, seeking—at each step his vitality becomes weaker and weaker.

In time he becomes old in his youth, his frame but an empty shell, his mind a conglomeration of selfishness and debauchery.

It requires work to go this pace—work that leads to the open grave.

Wanted—A New Hand.

The science of surgery has been developed to such a wonderful degree in the world war that a mother has appealed to the medical department at Fort Sheridan to graft a new hand on a five months old child that was born without that member.

The chief surgeon reluctantly admits that science has not reached that point. A new hand can not be furnished the little child now, but who knows what the future may bring to it?

In five or ten years it may be possible to amputate the stump of the living child and graft on the hand of a child that has just died. The time will undoubtedly come when surgical science will be able to accomplish even this wonder.

During the civil war many thousands of arms and legs were sawed off without the aid of an anæsthetic. Today such a thing is never even considered.

A few years ago the pulling of a tooth was a fearful ordeal to the victim. Today whole sets are extracted without pain.

The modern surgeon cuts a man open, turns him inside out, cleans his organs, sews him up again, and in a few weeks the fellow is up and trying to put one over on his competitor in business.

The wonders of surgery are so great as to be almost unbelievable to the lay mind, and yet it is only in its infancy.

Another great war will result in as great achievements in the development of the science as the one just closed, and it will not be at all surprising to see the hands of the dead grafted onto the shattered stumps of the living.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

... OF ...

Special Election

... IN ...

Garrard County, Kentucky,

— ON —

TUESDAY, MARCH 30th, 1920

REGULAR TERM:

GARRARD COUNTY COURT; JANUARY 26, 1920.

PRESENT: Hon. Forest Stapp, Judge.

This day came, R. G. Woods and two hundred and thirty two other Citizens and legally qualified voters of Garrard County, Kentucky, who are free holders of the County, and petitioned the Court to make an order on his order book directing the Officers of the Election in all voting precincts in the County, to open a poll on TUESDAY MARCH 30, 1920, to take sense of the legal voters of said County upon the question "Are you in favor of issuing $192,000.00 in Bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges."

Said Bonds to bear interest not to exceed five per cent per annum with coupons attached, payable semi-annually. Said Bonds to be in denominations of not less than One Hundred Dollars or more than One Thousand Dollars to run not less than five nor more than twenty-one years, and to be redeemed within that time at the pleasure of the Garrard County Fiscal Court and to be sold at not less par value and accrued interest.

Wherefore it is ordered by the Court, that the regular officers of the election, in all the voting precincts in the county will open a poll on Tuesday March 30, 1920, to take the sense of the legal voters in said County upon the question "Are you in favor of issuing $192,000.00 in Bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges."

The sheriff of said County is directed to advertise said election and the object thereof, for at least 30 days next before the day thereof, in some newspaper having the largest circulation in the County and also by printed hand bills posted up at not less than four public places in each voting precinct in the County and at the Court House Door.

The County Clerk is directed to have printed, upon the Ballot, the question, "Are you in favor of issuing $192,000.00 in Bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges," and to leave two places upon the right of said question: One for votes favoring the issue, to be designated by the word "Yes", and one for votes opposing the issue to be designated by the word "No", and said Ballot to be printed as provided for in the General Election Laws, Section 1459 Kentucky Statutes.

Said Election shall in all respects, be held in accordance with the general Election Laws of the state.

It is further provided that all the money raised by the sale of the said bonds shall be used solely and alone for the building, construction, or re-construction of roads of asphaltum, concrete, brick, stone block, macadam, gravel or other processes of equal merit.

FOREST STAPP, Judge of Garrard County Court.
This notice is given in pursuance to above order of the Garrard County Court. This 29th day of January 1920.

A. K. WALKER, Sheriff of Garrard County.

Rival.
It seems strange that this English word which means a competitor of some sort should have come from the Latin word "rivalis," pertaining to a stream. But we can easily imagine that the neighbors who lived along the river bank and used the same source for water would sometimes quarrel about their rights and perhaps become enemies.

W. E. Curry, 130 Up 4th St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "I have a little girl 6 years who has a good deal of trouble with croup. I have used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, giving it to her according to directions, and obtaining instant relief for her. My wife and I use it whenever bothered with a bad cold or cough, and I will say that it is the best remedy for a bad cold, cough, throat trouble or croup that I ever saw."

Parents who use Foley's Honey and Tar know it is safe and no harm will come even if an overdose should be given by accident. It tastes good and children like it. It won't upset the delicate stomachs of young children, delicate persons or elderly people.

Ladies' Man

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Aiblon Steele came to Wellston unheralded and without introduction. Nobody asked him for credentials or antecedents, for from the first he made a good impression. He was accepted by the male portion of the community as a quiet, obliging and eminently respectable person, and he won the admiration and esteem of members of the gentler sex through his unvarying courtesy, handsome face and exquisite good taste in the matter of dress.

It was a high tribute to his attractiveness when it became known that he was engaged to Rita Morris. She was the belle of the village. Her parents were only humble folk, but had brought her up well. Flare and glitter could never have secured her attention. The tested sincerity and innate merit of Steele had alone won her regard, and to her his courtierlike presentation was simply the well-bred refinement of a true gentleman.

It lacked a month of the announced marriage, when all Wellston was set agog with the intelligence that a wealthy relative had left Rita a fortune of nearly a hundred thousand dollars.

"Of course the wedding won't take place," averred one critic. "Rita has become the richest girl in the district. Is well fitted for high social life and her folks will look beyond Steele."

Steele, meeting Mr. Morris on the street one day, suggested that Rita under new and unexpected conditions might wish to change her mind.

"You're wrong there; nor do we," at once asserted the bluff, wheelbarrowed old man. "We have been glad to think of you as a son-in-law and we're not of the parsimonious kind."

So the wedding took place. Steele kept right on with his professional practice and proudly refused to indulge in any extravagance on his wife's means.

Rita lived entirely for him. She was ambitious for his sake and urged him to enter public life. He was elected president of the town board and later named as a candidate for the state senate. It was while Steele was campaigning that Ben Heazly and Tom Wall, traveling patent medicine hawkers, came to Wellston.

"Well," said Heazly, flaring open the local paper and revealing a large picture of "our esteemed townsman and the next state senator," "do you recognize him?"

"I don't," replied Wall promptly.

"Then you've got a bad memory. That is the young fellow whose room we took when we boarded at a place in Dover. Recollect how we pawed over a lot of rubbish he left behind him, among them a dozen or more photographs of himself and different ladies, taken together?"

"Why, it does sort of dawn on me," said Wall.

"Don't you recall how I said he must be a professional masquerade in having so many lady loves? Well, since then he's come to this town, has married the richest girl in it, is up for state senator and—I have those photographs back home."

"What of it?"

"Why, a good big tribe, or I'll give him away. What won't he give to suppress those pictures of his giddy days? What won't his political rivals pay to get possession of them?"

A few days later Heazly called at the Morris home. He proceeded to business at once. "Mrs. Steele," he said briskly, "I am assuming that your husband and his friends would give a good deal to see him land the senatorship. Well, I am the man who can make it sure for him or defeat him."

"I know nothing about my husband's political or business affairs," spoke Rita, resenting the familiar manner of her visitor.

"Oh! you will be interested," coolly assured Heazly. "Plainly, lady, I have some photographs taken at a period before Mr. Steele was married."

Rita stared aghast. Every one of the pictures showed a man, unmistakably her husband, with a different woman, each time making love. In one he was kneeling at a lady's feet, in another he was kissing a lady's hand, in all of them his attitude and facial expression portrayed the lover full and complete. Rita was too shocked to speak.

"I want the five thousand dollars in cash," began Heazly, when the door opened and Steele, who unexpectedly returned, entered.

"What is this?" he cried, and as the agitated, nearly heartbroken Rita disjunctly explained, he indulged in a hearty laugh.

"Why, my dear!" he spoke with animation, "these are mementoes of my experience when for one year I acted in the movies, and were taken to be given to the artist to make the show placards. Bless you! All of the ladies were married and most of them mothers—good, practical women, who made acting a business. My man," he said to the baffled Heazly, "you've brought your wares to the wrong shop. They said I was a good actor. Well, I don't think anything you or my rivals can do will prevent me from becoming a good senator."

And as the knavish blackmailer slunk away, Rita with relief, restored confidence and love in her eyes, put her arms about Aiblon's neck and nestled there.

When the Judgment Day Arrives for Tires

When a tire has run its course and you measure its service against your investment, you find out whether your expectations were justified or not.

That's the trouble with most tires—you never can know until you've spent your money.

But Diamonds face the Judgment Day with 5,000, 6,000 and 8,000 miles regularly.

Buying Diamonds means you'll get your money's worth. We can equip your car at a moderate cost.

Read the advertisement of Coy Sanders in this issue. He is going to sell out his entire stock of groceries etc., and "sell'em quick." He means what he says.

LAND SALE

We wish to call your attention to the sale of Edd Hubbard which takes place next Tuesday, on the Fall Dick pike. He will sell his personalties and his small farm. Read his adv. in this issue.

The Family Paper.

The Central Record is a paper for every member of the family. It is looked for eagerly every week and if it should miss the phone in the Record office rings to know what is the matter.

One reason the Record has such a large circulation in the county is the fact that it reaches every part of the county by Saturday and the news is fresh when it is received. The people do not want a paper that reaches them the following week after it is published.

Bourne-Meadows

The marriage of Miss Maud Bourne and Mr. Orville Meadows both of this county was solemnized in Jeffersonville, Indiana, January 24th, 1920. The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. E. S. Bourne and Mr. Meadows in a prosperous farmer of Hyattsville.

The happy couple began life together with brightest prospects and the good wishes of their hosts of friends for complete happiness.

Adams-Benge.

January 31st at high noon, Miss Stella Adams was married to Mr. Elijah Benge. The ceremony was solemnized at the home of Rev. C. D. Strother, the officiating minister, in the presence of a number of friends. A few days previous to this, the bride's two sisters, Bertha and Jaunita were married to Elisha Adams and Andrew Cheatham. The former ceremony was performed at the home of the brides, on Fisher Ford pike, by Rev. B. J. Skaggs. All are residents of this county. The unique thing about these marriages is the fact that the three brides are sisters, the three grooms first cousins, and that all were married within a few days.

Col. Jack Chinn

Passes Away.

Famous Turfman Dies
In St. Joseph's Hospital at Lexington
After Long Illness.

Lexington, Ky., January 31.—Col. Jack Chinn, famous Kentucky and turfman whose home was at Munday's Landing on Kentucky river in Woodford county, died this morning in St. Joseph's hospital here, where he had been ill for several days. Col. Chinn was about 75 years old and had been in failing health for several years.

Col. Chinn was a former member of the Kentucky Legislature and one of the most picturesque characters in the State. When a small boy of probability he enlisted in the Confederate army and served the cause during the entire Civil war. He was probably the best known turfman and politician in the state at one time and was known all over the country. He is survived by his wife and four sons, Kit Chinn, of California, Morgan and Phil Chinn, of Lexington, and George Chinn, of near Harrodsburg.

Col. Chinn was with Gov. Gobel when the latter was shot by an assassin on the Capitol grounds at Frankfort, on January 30, 1900, and the death of the noted turfman on Jan 31, a day after the anniversary of the shooting, is a striking coincidence.

Burial took place at Harrodsburg, Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Many from here attending.

Join The Legion.

The American Legion intends to make a country wide drive from February 1 to February 22 for members. In accordance with the program the J. Franklin Bell Post, of Shelbyville, will push this campaign to the limit of the ability of the present rather small membership.

It cannot be too heartily impressed on the ex service men in the county that there is no military obligation connected with the Legion. It is an association of young Americans who served their country in war and still have work to do in peace; work that will benefit their communities fully as much as it will benefit the members. The creed of the Legion is the very epitome of an untainted Americanism; no man who lives up to that creed can be other than a good citizen. The enemies of the United States are not all dead and they are not all in chains. The American Legion is the best and strongest force in existence to combat the unpatriotic.

If you are a former soldier, sailor or marine and read this, make it your business to be present at the meeting in the court house tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Give a hand in the good work. The Legion needs you and you need the Legion. If you who read are a relative of one of those who wore the khaki or the blue—and there are few who haven't such a relative—bring this to his attention and ask him to make it his business to attend. This body deserves the support of every good American in the county.

This is a splendid likeness of little J. D. Williams, who was fatally burned on January 13th. He was indeed a bright and manly little fellow and dearly beloved by all who knew him. He was a faithful member of the Baptist Sunday School that has just gotten out a beautiful and touching pamphlet to his memory. The proceeds derived from its sale will be known as the "J. D. Williams Memorial Fund" and many friends of the family are asking for copies of it.

Mercer Girl Inherits Estate Of Somerset's Indian Doctor.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Jan. 30.—A Mercer county girl and two sisters have inherited the bulk of the big fortune of Dr. J. S. Anderson, Choctaw Indian herbalist, who recently died at his large sanitarium at Somerset.

Among the people who went from this county to be treated at the Indian's sanitarium was Miss Hattie Darland, a school teacher. She became his secretary, and by his will, just probated, she is chief beneficiary. She receives in fee simple four houses and lots, a barn and garage, at Kingston, Tenn.; three farms in Pulaski county of 123 acres, 78 acres and 173 acres, respectively. The land lies near Somerset and is said to be worth $100 an acre. Miss Darland also receives an automobile, all bequests being to "my faithful and efficient secretary." Misses Myrtle and Bertha Darland, her sisters, receive a house and lot jointly in Ferguson, Pulaski county. They are daughters of Martin Darland, who for two years has been manager of Dr. Anderson's farms.

EARNEST APPEAL From A Starving Nation For You To Join The $5.00 Club.

Last week I appealed to the Harrodsburg county men and women both young and old to join the $5.00 club and help the poor starving Armenians and Syrians. From which appeal I expected an unusual response, but I was doomed to disappointment.

Now friends for the sake of God and humanity and to save the starving hungry nation unsolicited you this club today.

We, who are so bountifully blessed must not be selfish.

CHURCHES GAIN 3,000,000 SOULS

Sunday Schools and Pupils Show Heavy Decreases, Report Shows.

NEW YORK—America's churches have gained nearly 3,000,000 members since the last church census was taken in 1916, but there has been a marked decrease in the number of Sunday schools and Sunday school pupils, according to the "yearbook of the churches," which will be issued this week by the Federal Council of the Churches in Christ in America.

Total church membership has increased 2,779,667, the announcement says, with an increase of 3,519 ministers and 5,350 church organizations. The total number of churches is now 233,834. There are 198,513 ministers, priests and rabbis, with 44,709,521 organizations. The decrease in Sunday School membership is estimated at more than 3,500,000.

Total Protestant church membership is given at 55,890,456 and the Roman Catholic figures as 17,549,324. It is explained that Protestant figures include only adult communicant members of a family, while Roman Catholic statistics represent the entire family. Estimating four persons to a family, the Protestant constituency would be more than 50,000,000, the book says.

An estimate of members of Jewish synagogues is 260,000 and the two Mormon bodies report a membership of 494,388.

The largest Protestant body reporting was the Methodist Episcopal church with 4,175,502 members, and the smallest the Primitive Friends with only fifty members and two ministers. The National Baptist Convention (colored) is the second largest Protestant organization with 2,938,579.

FEBRUARY

Will Contain Five Sundays This Year.

For the first time in 40 years there will be five Sundays in the coming February. Ordinarily the sequence of five Sundays in February recurs once in each 28 years, but owing to the fact that 1900 was not a leap year, the calendar "slipped a cog", and Sunday, being shunted out of place in numerical order, it did not get back into position to become the first and last day of the month from 1880 until this year.

As most school children know, this year 1900 was not a leap year. Those who invented our present system of computing time discovered that adding one day in every four years was a fraction too much, so the plan was hit upon to make century years divisible by 400 only leap years. This, it was found, evened things up nicely and prevented January from eventually becoming a midsummer month, as might have been the case some time in the next 50,000 years had this not been done.

The first time in the last century that February had five Sundays was in 1824. It happened again in 1852 and again in 1880, each period 28 years apart. After this year the sequence will occur in 1948, 1976, 2006, 2034, 2062, 2090, and then since 2100 will not be a leap year, it will skip to 2130.

Perhaps the question most in the minds of those who are on a weekly pay basis is as to Saturday, but these can be reassured somewhat by the knowledge that there will not be five Saturdays in February until 1936.

Compulsory Military Training.

A bill has passed the Senate by a very large majority providing for compulsory military training of four months in each year for three years of all youths between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one.

We trust this bill will not pass the House. We are confident that a great majority of the citizens of the United States are opposed to compulsory military training. The people want to get as far away from the war idea as possible. They have gotten their fill of it.

It was enforced military training in Germany which led that country to believe it could whip the world, and precipitated the great war. Of course the Senate bill is a very moderate one compared to the law which made every German citizen a soldier, but it smacks of the same idea and has a tendency in the same direction.

We do not think that a few months a year military training hurts a young man. It is in reality rather helpful to him in many ways, but most anything of this character, which is compulsory is offensive to the average American citizen. Let the colleges, universities and even the high schools have military training as part of the curriculum, but don't force all the youths of the country to be fitted for soldiers and subject to army service.

This country wants to cultivate peace, and not war and a strong navy is about all the United States needs to protect itself from foreign nations. The compulsory military training bill looks like the country has no confidence in the League of Nations.—Etown News.

Derivation of "Flannel."

Some of the earlier philologists claim that the word "flannel" was originally written and pronounced "flannan," and that it was essentially of Welsh origin, being derived from the Welsh "gwlanan," wool, but this notion is considered doubtful by modern lexicographers, who regard its derivation from the Danish "flanel," old French "flanelle," or the Italian "flanella," as more probable.

Protecting Linoleum.

One woman spreads two newspapers over her linoleum while preparing her meals, one in front of the sink and the other near the stove, as she has found that in this way the covering remains fresh considerably longer than otherwise. When the meal is cleared away, the papers are thrown out and with them no little grease or soot particles which would have soiled the floor.

The Charge Account

"The mischief?"

Percy Bliss was not given to the use of forcible expletives and thus eloquent expression of the wonderment, distaste and anxiety of which he was capable. He stood dazed almost dumb at a vivid shock starting blinks at a sheet of paper in his hand. He had come home to his smooth-shaven face of a year, to find her absent, and then, finding a startling discovery, to his disturbed imagination its beauty and comfort seemed fading into desolation right at his feet.

Upon a table beside the telephone was a number. He glanced at it and recognized that the last act of his wife was to call up her dearest friend and confidant, Miss Iona Walters. Crumpling the sheet in his hand, Percy dashed from the house, nor paused nor faltered until he had reached the office of Wallace Blight. He burst in upon him breathless and agitated, closing the office door as they might be alone.

"Wallace," he exclaimed hoarsely, throwing himself into a chair, "You've got me into the trouble of my life."

Blight stared at his agitated visitor blankly. It was unusual to see his placid, systematic friend other than serene and satisfied.

"What has happened?" propounded Wallace. "Been having a tiff with Dorothy?"

"We never have tiffs," dissented Percy resentfully. "It's worse than that, Wallace—I probably have broken her heart."

"You amaze and alarm me!" spoke Blight, really aroused at the earnest manner of Bliss.

"You remember coming to me a month ago in what you called a terrible fix?"

"You mean the Adrienne Ballingford affair? I certainly do. I needed money or credit for a few hundred dollars. That was before I got my share of my uncle's fortune. But I paid you back, Percy."

"Which did not and does not matter. I would give ten times the amount to get out of the dilemma in which my slight accommodation has placed me. You had been smitten with the stage beauty, Adrienne Ballingford, a year ago and written her some silly letters."

"All true. I got the letters and paid you back the three hundred dollars you became responsible for."

"Yes, and today, an unusual thing, for my bills usually come to my office, the one for those wretched goods came to my house. Dorothy read it. Just think what she must think of an order for two kimono, six pairs of silk stockings and a lot of other follies of feminine adornment!"

Blight looked startled now. "Why, say," she learns the truth and it gets to the ears of Nellie's parents, think of the awful position I am in! Oh, my, a terrible mess I've made of it!"

"I can't give you away," observed Percy in a troubled tone.

"And I can't break up your household by allowing you to take the blame."

For some moments the worried twain sat gloomily silent, mutually going over the situation.

"I've got it!" cried Wallace suddenly, leaping to his feet. "Come with me. Right away straight to Day & Co.'s we'll go. Get the original bill?"

"Yes."

"We'll duplicate it."

"What do you mean—what good will that do?"

Wallace whispered to Percy's ear, instantly the face of the latter brightened. They dashed from the office. One hour later the two schemers entered the Bliss flat. They carried a variety of bundles. The contents were stored in a drawer in Percy's desk.

Two hours later still, with a relieved mind and bright eyes Percy again entered the flat. His wife greeted him with a tear-stained face.

"Oh, Percy," she sobbed, "I have found you out. How cruelly you have deceived me. Married on my birthday and our first anniversary here only day after tomorrow! Kimono! silk stockings! a mesh bag! a fur coat! Oh, who is this mysterious female who has wrecked our home?"

"Alas," cried Percy, in an injured tone. "I think I surmise. Did that stupid Day & Co. send a bill to the house instead of to my office?"

"Yes, they did."

"Dorothy, come here!"

Percy led his wife into his den and up to his desk. He drew open its drawer.

"It's a shame to spoil a surprise," he said, stern as a judge. "But, the cat being out of the bag, I shall have to subdue your hysterics. There! You can't say I am not glad to think of you on your birthday."

There lay all the articles Dorothy had named and many more. Over her face a great joyous glow began to spread.

"Oh, you thoughtful, loyal darling!" she cried. "And I have so unjustly treated you! And there isn't any mysterious character! And you are the sweetest, dearest, king of husbands! So there! and there! and there!"

And serenely Percy Bliss talked off each kiss awarded with a silent chuckle. "I've saved poor Wallace," he told himself with satisfaction, "but never again any experimenting with my charge account."

Mistake and Mushrooms.
An unusual occurrence is reported from Letchworth golf links. It appears that an enthusiastic beginner mistook a mushroom for his ball, and did not discover his mistake until five strokes afterward.

Books.
Some books are old fies to stand as they are built; some are hewn stones ready to form a part of future edifices; some are quarries from which stones are to be split for shaping and after use.—Holmes.

There Are Many Butties.
Butty was an aggravating child, and the children would seldom play with him long at a time, but got out of patience with her and left her to herself. Her mother returned from a call on the one day and was asked why she came home so soon. "Why," Her mother asked with some vehemence, "it hurts me one's temper so to play with Butty."

Yes, "When You Understand It."
Salt Lake City names its streets thus: First South, Second South, Third South, etc., counting from the Mormon temple; but to find a given address you have to know whether it's on East First South or West First South. No. 700 West First South would be at the corner of South Seventh West. It's very simple when you understand it.

Not a Bad Description.
I sent my little daughter, Anna, to the market for a pound of Frankfurt sausage. She played on the way and forgot the name. After the butcher asked her twice what kind of sausage she wanted she said: "Oh, you know; the kind that needs a hot bath before you can eat them." Needless to say, she brought the right kind home after every one in the market had a good laugh.—Chicago Tribune.

THORNHILL WAGONS

SOME Thornhill owners constantly comment on the ease with which the wagon can be "backed up." This is due to the full circle iron. The ordinary circle is but a half circle (C). In making a sharp turn bolsters often run to the end of the track and become "derailed." Thornhills cannot do this because their track is a circle (O).

Others comment on the fact that in spite of tremendous overloads, Thornhill axles never break. The reason for this is plain. They use tough highland hickory—reinforced by a steel truss bar that extends the full length of the axle.

Still others comment that the gears never get out of line. This unusual feature is due to one of their workmen's inventions. He designed a malleable front hound plate—bolted to the gears at eight points. It's literally a jacket of iron that holds gears in line and insures light running for life.

From fifty sections come reports that the old trouble of broken king bolts is unknown among owners of Thornhill wagons. This because of a cup and saucer arrangement on the bolster that relieves the king bolt of strain. To others the amazing feature is the long life of Thornhill beds—due to their location which gives them the pick of the yearly cutting of wood and due, in part, to the fact that they paint with pure lead and linseed oil despite its high cost.

Thousands of owners have found in Thornhills unusual strength where they are accustomed to weakness.

Let us show you this perfected wagon. (1919-20)

There are several methods of distinguishing the edible from the poisonous mushroom. But the safest way is to regard them all as poisonous. Do you recall the Italian botanist whose specialty was mushrooms and who died from a mess of them?

RED CROSS GETS CALL FOR MORE NURSES

THREE calls for nurses have come to the Lake Division Department of Nursing in the past week. The opportunities offered are several—overseas, in the navy, and in the United States Public Health Service. Applications of enrolled Red Cross nurses are being received at the Department of Nursing, 22nd and Prospect ave., Cleveland, O., Plymouth Bld. Patriotic service is still open to women who are training to be nurses in schools in this country. The director of nursing at Lake Division headquarters, says: "From the moment a student enters the training school, little or no financial outlay is necessary. When she graduates the nurse enters a field where the demand has always been greater than the supply."

LAKE DIVISION FINANCIER ATTENDS GENEVA COUNCIL OF THE RED CROSS LEAGUE

APPOINTMENT of five American delegates to the first meeting of the General Council, League of the Red Cross Societies, at Geneva, was announced by the American Red Cross today. The delegates are:

William H. Walling, of Chicago, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, Ohio H. Cutler, of New York, former manager of the Insular and Foreign Division; Mrs. Wm. K. Draper, vice-chairman of New York County Chapter and formerly chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee; Samuel Mather, of Cleveland, former member of the Central Committee; and Elliot Wadsworth, of Boston, member of the Central Committee.

Henry P. Davison, formerly chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross, chairman of the Board of Governors of the League of Red Cross Societies, will accompany the delegates when they sail on the Mauretania next Wednesday. Mr. Davison was named chairman of the board when the League of Red Cross Societies was formed at a meeting of delegates from America and four principal Allied nations last spring.

The meeting, which will open in Geneva March 2 and will continue one week, is expected to prove of far-reaching importance in international health promotion.

World problem concerning improvement of health and prevention of disease; means of increasing the membership, resources and effectiveness of national Red Cross Societies and methods of organizing and using these for peacetime service will be discussed.

Delegates from the following national Red Crosses, members of the League, have been invited, along with those of the United States: Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Cuba, Denmark, England, France, Greece, Holland, India, Japan, Italy, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Serbia, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, Venezuela, Uruguay and Czechoslovakia.

The creation of the League of Red Cross Societies was the direct result of the universal desire to preserve for the benefit of all mankind the spirit and effectiveness developed by the Red Cross during the World War.

RED CROSS JUNIORS WORK TO HELP OTHER CHILDREN

CHILD relief work this year is to be the activity of the American Junior Red Cross—now organized in almost 75 per cent of the schools of America.

"February 22nd is the last day for enrolling Junior auxiliaries in the current school year in your county," says Mrs. Harrison W. Ewing, Lake Division Director of Junior Membership.

The year's work of the children will bring help to children suffering in this country or overseas.

Friendliness between children of America and other nations is being promoted by Junior Red Cross international service for the children.

An Aerial Proposal

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union)

Effie ran back under an open stock shed, as though that frail shelter would protect her from the descent of what suggested to her some devouring monster of the air aimed straight for the spot. It was an airplane, and she knew this, but as it shot toward her a vivid terror overcame her. She shrunk back and covered her face with her hands. Nothing happened. There had come a clucking and then a clumping sound outside and then silence. The danger was apparently over and she ventured to the edge of the shed and looked aloft.

The new presentment was one calculated to inspire relief and a sense of security. The airplane had landed not fifty feet away and was motionless and silent now. A young man in conventional flying costume had alighted and was busily engaged in tinkering about the engine of the plane. His agility, what of his face showed, a cheery whistle attracted Effie. She timidly advanced. The aviator noticed her, smiled pleasantly and suspended his work temporarily.

"Your farm, I guess?" he spoke in clear, mellow tones. "No one will hunt me off if I get on my way soon, eh?" "Oh! Indeed not," replied Effie quickly. "We are all quite interested in airplanes. In fact my brother, who was overseas, did something in flying."

"Did he, now?" projected Dick Morley. "I must hunt him up."

"He is not at home just now," explained Effie, "but he would be glad to meet you, I know. Haven't we noticed your plane pass over several times lately?"

"Very likely," responded Dick. "You see, it's part of the experimental air service. I fly from Merrill to Brampton trying to establish a schedule for regular service later on. One of the valve rockers slipped out of true and I came down to repair it." He resumed his work on the engine, restored his tools to a box aboard and got ready to resume his flight.

"And what are those?" inquired Effie as she noticed two small flags lying on the driver's seat.

"Wig-wags," answered Dick—"signal flags. I report at the fixed station we pass." He studied the pretty, glowing face before him with admiration and seemed reluctant to depart. He put in the time asking Effie about her brother and they parted in pleasant acquaintances.

Every other day for a week the airplane crossed the sky directly over the Hawson place and about the same hour. The first day Dick waved his flags and Effie fluttered her handkerchief in return. Just after that on his out trip Dick dropped a pretty nosegay. The second trip succeeding he let loose a box of chocolate creams.

"It is getting interesting and serious," Effie told herself with a conscious flush. Her brother returned that evening. The clever little plotter led him into telling of his experiences in the war zone. He found an absorbed listener in his sister. In order to demonstrate the utility of the air signals he brought out two flags.

"You can keep those as souvenirs, sister," he said, and proceeded to teach Effie the code.

"I've heard your brother has come home, Miss Hawson," Dick said when next they met. "Tell him I am eager to meet him. By the way, why I stopped! It's a queer reason. I met a Miss Olive Randall at Midvale today."

"Oh! yes, she is a very dear friend," spoke Effie with animation.

"She told me so," returned Dick, "and she fancied it would be a wonderful thing to send you a letter by airplane. Here it is."

"But," spoke Effie, glancing at the extended hand, "there are two letters."

"Yes, one of them is from myself," explained Dick. He looked her closely in the eyes as he spoke, and Effie experienced a strange thrill, as though his ardent gaze expressed the partial suppression of some deep emotion. She flushed as she toyed with the two missives.

"You will please not read mine until I have resumed my flight," said Dick. It was womanlike that Effie should open it first, after Dick had speeded on his way. The bloom upon her fair cheek was intensified as she did so. She tripped to the house in an apparently joyful mood. She was the vivid life of the family circle all that evening.

Once in her room, a happy, dreamy expression on her animated face, Effie took the two signal flags from their place over the mirror and practiced wig-wagging industriously for half an hour. She was out in the field next morning a long time before a speck in the distance gradually grew to the plainly distinguishable proportions of an airplane.

She was repeating over to herself the brief but telling contents of the letter Dick Morley had written to her. It was to the point, and it told her that he loved her, and asked if he would be welcome if he called upon her that evening.

Effie was all a-flutter as she watched the airplane near slowly and come directly overhead. Then up went the flags, and out of the plane in prodigious profusion there came a shower of beautiful roses as she wig-wagged:

"Y-e-s."

Must A Child Be Pale?

Pallor, "Tired-outness" and Poor Appetite Always Remedied by Pepto-Mangan

It Builds Up the Blood and Thus Improves the Appetite and Strengthens the Body

There is but one legitimate excuse for a pale, run-down, listless child, and that is some serious disease of one or more of the vital organs, which, of course, needs the prompt attention of a competent physician. Unless such condition exists, the weak, white youngster who takes no pleasure in romping or playing can be very materially helped by a course of that thoroughly dependable blood enricher and general tonic, Gude's Pepto-Mangan. This standard remedy for Anemia (Bloodlessness) has been continuously prescribed by physicians all over the world for nearly thirty years, to restore the weakened, watery blood to its normal condition, and thus improve appetite, add color to pale lips and cheeks and impart strength to the whole body. Gude's Pepto-Mangan can be had in both liquid and tablet form (no difference in its effect), the liquid, of course, being preferable for young children. When buying Pepto-Mangan, be sure the name "Gude's" is on the package. Without "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan.

Looking For Feathers.

The more we hear of this proposition to lend Europe another ship load of money the more objectionable the whole scheme appears.

Europe is not in good condition, we admit. But Europe has land, it has the tools and machinery for cultivating that land, and it has the men to use the tools.

Of course, with so many men killed in the war, it might become necessary for a few of the gilded dandies to sell their hands with honest toil in order to secure the necessary production of foodstuffs. But that would do them good—it might even eventually raise them to the status of real men.

Europe wants to feather its nest, but we fear it does not want to resort to manual labor to bring about this much desired result. It prefers that the United States furnish the feathers.

But, somehow, we are forced to the conclusion that we have feathered enough nests on the other side of the Atlantic.

Europe knows there is to be another great war, and wants to set its house in order to meet it. Being short on feathers, our good foreign friends are averse to pursuing the slow process of waiting for them to grow. It is easier to pluck them from Uncle Sam, even if Uncle has to turn his pockets inside out in order to accommodate his good friends abroad.

But Uncle's hundred million children can't see it from the same angle. They are distressingly perverse and stubborn.

Then, too, Europe is pained at the volume of foreign trade American manufacturers have built up since the war began. They desire exceedingly to bolster up their own manufacturing interests, and to divert this flow of yellow metal toward their own empty coffers.

But to do this requires money—much money—and the easiest and simplest way is to pluck it from Uncle.

But even Uncle himself is becoming skeptical. He has loaned our dear friends in Europe billions of dollars already, and he can't even collect the interest on the loans. When he will be able to collect the principal, the Lord only knows.

Citizens of the United States are paying enormous income taxes in order to keep the ship of state afloat, and now word comes from Washington that we will have to cut expenses or raise taxes or sell more bonds.

Our great army has flown to the four winds, our navy is almost out of business for lack of men, and our millions of war material has been sold to the French. We are in the position of the juvenile giant who is so heavy and unwieldy he can not even flick the dust from his own shoes.

We have money, yes; but if hell breaks loose again we will have dire need for every dollar of it.

Feather Europe's nest again?

Nothing doing! Self protection is the first law of nature. Keep those thirty-five billion dollars at home. Drop a few feathers in the Eagle's nest first.

Fuel in Scandinavia.

In Scandinavia wood is the usual fuel, while the towns and villages are electrically lighted by waterpower. Norway has no coal, but Sweden has quite lately discovered that she has good supplies.

PUREBRED BULLS VS. SCRUBS

Early Rewards Clearly Indicated to Stock Raiser From Using Purebred Sires.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A few calculations in fractions indicate clearly the early rewards to the stock raiser from breeding with purebred sires instead of grade sires. The Bureau of Animal Industry, which is sponsoring the nationwide "better stock, better stock" campaign, calls attention to a series of diagrams issued in Wisconsin which show the progress of breeding native cows for five generations with purebred bulls, compared with five generations of breeding with grade three-fourths full-blood bulls.

After five or, in fact, any number of generations of such breeding, the calves are still less than three-quarters full blood, while if only purebred bulls are used, three-quarter bloods are produced in the second generation, and the calves of the fifth generation are thirty-one thirty-seconds full blood. The characteristics of the breed rapidly become fixed in a stock in which only purebred sires are used, while after any number of generations of breeding to three-quarter blood sires the characteristics of scrub stock still frequently appear. A three-quarter blood bull is much more likely to transmit unfortunate characteristics which are not visible in himself than a pure-blood bull. A single bull of this sort may undo the work of years of selection in building up a herd. The conclusion is that in grading up live stock, only purebred sires of good quality should be used.

GOSPEL OF BETTER FENCES

Novel "Drive" Inaugurated for Improvement of Farms, Both in Value and Appearance.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With a view to effecting a practical improvement in the value and the appearance of the farms, a five-day "buy-a-fence" campaign was recently conducted throughout the rural districts of Mississippi. This novel "drive" was joined in by local representatives of the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural college, and other organizations and agencies. Elaborate plans for promoting the campaign were worked out in advance, including the organization in each county of committees whose duty it was to spread the gospel of better fences. The big saving to farmers resulting from better fences was pointed out, likewise the labor saved in caring for live stock to prevent overfeeding. An appeal was also made for fields and homesteads that appear well cared for.

Good as were the immediate results of the campaign, it is believed that the permanent benefits will be equally large, in that it concentrated attention on the fence question and is expected to promote greater interest in this important feature of farm improvements.

FAVOR CALVES BORN IN FALL

In Spring They Are Sufficiently Grown to Take Care of Themselves—Make Good Growth.

Calves born in the fall can be grainfed and properly cared for and when grass is ready to be pastured in the spring they are sufficiently grown to take care of themselves. They thus have an opportunity to make a good growth the first year, which is very essential in rearing a high-producing dairy cow.

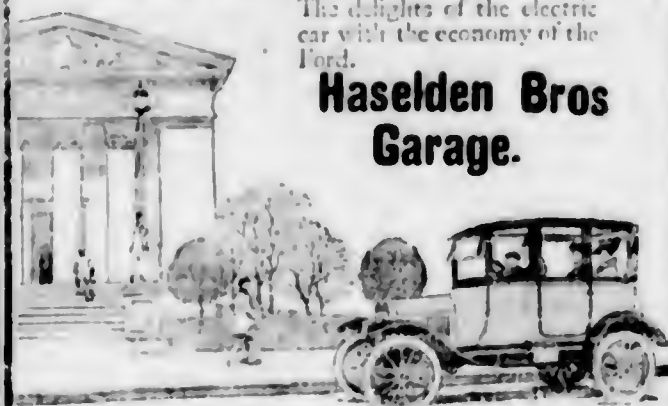

DAIRY BULLS VERY NERVOUS

Unlike Sluggish Beef Breeds They Are Active, Alert and Cannot Be Depended Upon.

Bulls belonging to the dairy breeds are usually more nervous than are the bulls belonging to the beef breeds. The latter are more sluggish. The dairy bull is active, alert and cannot be depended upon.

We just knew you would turn to this page!

Secretary Wilson insists that all alien reds must go. All right—are they going.

The wise man parts not of his own wisdom. Were it otherwise he would be only a fool.

And now they fear a "holy war" in Russia—which, if it comes will be anything but holy.

We suggest, in passing, that the better way to practice economy these days is to practice it.

Who says the rich are short on brains? Didn't a wise man once say that "a fool and his money soon part?"

Whether it be autocracy or democracy, this world seems to be sizzling in the frying pan any way it turns.

And now that we have made the world safe for democracy, how are we going to save democracy from itself?

And yet the dearth of real presidential timber unearthed to date almost tempts one to enter the race himself.

What a relief it would be if congress could slip a cog and do something for which we could really say a kind word!

Future generations have much for which to look forward. They will pay the tremendous war debt of the present one.

Despite our crude savagery, there is one thing about us Americans for which Europe entertains an unyielding affection—our cash.

The department of justice at Washington says the cost of living is going down, and the department of labor insists it is going up. That settles it—down today and up to-morrow.

No, we simply can not permit you to forget our great and good friend, Carranza. It is about time for him to tear loose again.

If we can pull off a respectable war without having an unholy stench raised over the award of medals, why, let's not have any more wars.

"Scientists Sweep Sky for Huge Comet," says a headline. Or possibly they were merely trying to locate the present price of a good smoke.

Why all this fussing about whether or not Holland shall give up the old War Lord? Once an egg is spoiled it can never be converted into a fighting cock.

We hope however, that our good friends of the peace league will not substitute scrambled eggs for brains. It would be a sad waste of perfectly good eggs.

If the price of commodities continues to soar we'll soon have no further use for this old earth. We'll all be in the skies hunting something to wear or a bite to eat.

After Emma and Alexander and all the rest of the red horde have slipped quietly back into United States, we presume congress will pass the necessary laws to prevent their return. It is the customary way.

Want a perfectly good hat cheap, old chap? Just wait until after the presidential nomination and there will be a bunch of them left in the ring. Soviet Russia met our departed reds with open arms, they say. And doubtless by this time the dear departed are mourning their open pockets.

FEEDING SILAGE TO DIFFERENT ANIMALS

Feed Any Place Where It Can Be Done Without Waste.

Good Plan to Supply It to Cows in Barns After Milking Has Been Completed—Not Advisable to Give Too Much to Horses.

"Corn silage may be fed out of doors in bunks, in the stall, or in fact any place where animals can eat it without waste," says H. W. Clark of the Colorado Agricultural College.

"In feeding milk cows it is a very good plan to give the hay in racks outside or some place where the animals will not waste it, and feed the ensilage in the barn after milking. It may be given twice a day in rations from 10 to 15 pounds at a feeding or 20 to 30 pounds per day.

"Some large animals will take as high as 40 to 50 pounds of silage per day, and make good use of it. In feeding fattening stock or steers, silage may be fed twice a day in smaller rations ranging from 10 to 15 pounds at a feed for grown stock and for young animals from 6 to 12 pounds.

"Sheep will consume from 2 to 4 pounds daily and horses from 4 to 12 pounds when not working.

"It is not advisable to feed work horses large quantities of silage no more than to give them large quantities of new grass.

"Feed the ensilage so that the animals will eat it up clean, as it spoils when exposed to the air for several days."

ADVANTAGE OF SELF-FEEDER

Hogs Not Entirely Finished in Cornfield Should Make Profitable Gains in Drylot.

Some feeders believe that hogs which are not entirely finished in the cornfield do not make efficient gains if removed from the field and fed grain in a drylot. There is no reason why this should be true provided the drylot ration is equal in amount and quality to that which the hogs have been obtaining in the cornfield. If the unfed animals are fully fed on corn, properly supplemented, they should make profitable gains in drylot if they have been previously doing so in the cornfield. The trouble is usually caused by the fact that the amount of the ration is decreased when the hogs are removed. A self-feeder can be used to excellent advantage in such cases.

ADVANTAGES OF A SILO

By B. W. CLARK, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

1. One-third greater returns can be secured from the land than when the corn is cured the ordinary way.
2. More live stock can be kept with silage than without it.
3. More of the corn crop can be saved than in any other way. This saving varies from 35 to 50 per cent.
4. Silage silage can be stored over to years of scarcity. Good silage will keep for years.
5. The value of straw is greatly increased by feeding it with silage.
6. Silage nearly doubles the profits of dairying.
7. Silage increases the profits of beef from 25 to 50 per cent.
8. Good silage is a splendid and economical feed for horses, but poor silage may kill them.

FAILURE IN RAISING CALVES

One of Most Common Causes is That of Overfeeding, Which Usually Results in Scours.

One of the common causes of failure in raising calves is that of overfeeding, which usually results in scours. When scouring occurs, the amount of milk fed should be reduced, or in severe case no milk at all given until the trouble ceases.

VALUE OF POULTRY PRODUCTS

Equal in Value to One-Half of Corn Crop—Easy Matter to Double Output of Chickens.

The poultry products of our nation are equal in value to one-half the entire corn crop of the nation. It would be fairly easy to double the output of poultry and make that industry equal in value to the corn crop.

"Are beautiful women stupid?" That is the query propounded by some d. f. over in London, and now it has floated across the Atlantic to stir up the d. f.'s over here. Of course the answer of every sane married man would depend upon the personal appearance of his wife, and of every lover upon that of his best girl. Beautiful women stupid? Ahem! Ask the other fellow.

USE WIRELESS

To Explode Mine 35 Miles Distance.

LONDON.—An interesting demonstration of some remarkable wireless developments was given at the Marconi headquarters at Chelmsford. A device which makes it possible for ships in distress to ring alarm bells on vessels 300 miles or more away was first shown. But an even more convincing demonstration of the uncanny power of wireless telegraphy was given when a small mine of gunpowder was exploded. At a given signal, Cambridge actuated an automatic transmitter, and almost immediately afterward the charge was fired at Chelmsford. (The distance is thirty-five miles.)

It needed no great imagination, as a member of the Marconi Company pointed out, to realize the possibilities of such an invention in war. There would be no difficulty in firing a gun from a spot 300 miles away. All the big guns used in the Passchendaele offensive could have been fired as easily from London as from Ypres. Paris could cause an explosion in Berlin by merely pressing a key. An airplane could wait until advancing enemy troops had reached a certain spot and then explode a mine which would annihilate them.

When the range of the instrument has been increased it would be a comparatively simple matter for a man sitting in an easy chair in London to cause an explosion in New York. All that would be necessary would be to leave in New York a receiver suitably hidden and connected with a mine.

DEATH CALLS THE OLDEST SON OF MR. AND MRS. IRVIN SIMPSON.

The sad death of James Edward Simpson, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Simpson, was a great shock to his many friends in this community. After a short illness of pneumonia, the spirit of the dear boy took its flight last Monday evening at the Berea Hospital. He was 15 years old; was a boy with many friends and no enemies. He was an exceptionally good boy and one who will be greatly missed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

There was a gentleness and kindness in his very manner that his friends will not soon forget. He was by nature a gentleman. He loved his friends and that be-got in others, a love for him. The influence of his gentleness and kindness will live long in the memory with those who knew him and loved him. What he was has gone into the great beyond, while what he possessed is left here—May God comfort his parents as they sit alone amid the desolate ruin of once a happy fire-side.

Waiting, waiting, waiting for the touch of a vanished hand, for the sound of a voice that is still. He leaves to mourn his loss, Father, Mother and one sister and a small brother. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved ones in this their dark hour of trial. After funeral services the remains were laid to rest in the M. E. Church yard near here.

Precious one he has left us. Left us yes forever more. But we hope to meet our loved one On that bright and happy shore. Lonely the house, and sad the hours Since our dear one has gone. But oh! brighter home than ours Is now in Heaven, his own. —Mrs. W. Daily.

Made His Name Immortal.
The endless screw is still called after Archimedes, for he invented it to pump the water from the holds of vessels, and has not been improved upon since. It is a long spiral, the lower extremity running down into the water, and as it is turned the water is lifted, flowing out at the top. It is really a development of this Archimedeian screw, reversed in action, which is seen in the propellers of modern steamships.

Convinced.
Whenever Bobby's mother gave him money for candy, she advised him to buy a little of good quality rather than more of a cheaper kind. Child-like, he was loath to do this, but one day he came back home with a few pieces of excellent candy, and when he had finished it he remarked: "Mother, I see now that the cheaper it is, the gawdier it ain't."—Boston Transcript.

Referendum.
Referendum is a Latin word now Anglicized. This and several kindred words are derived from the Latin verb, refero, I bear, I carry, I give back, from re, back; and fero, bear. The word referendum is a neuter noun, and it means the submission of a proposed public measure or law, which has been passed upon by the legislature, to a vote of the people for ratification or rejection; that is, the legislators refer or carry back the measure to the electorate.
